MEMORANDUM

DATE: August 24, 2012

TO: Planning Directors & Interested Parties Glen A. Campora

FROM: Glen A. Campora, Assistant Deputy Director
Division of Housing Policy Development

SUBJECT: Recent Housing Element Legislation Amending Alternative Adequate Sites

The Alternative Adequate Sites Statute (Government Code 65583.1 (c)) provides flexibility to local government by allowing up to 25 percent of the adequate sites requirements to be met by making available affordable units through rehabilitation, conversion, and/or preservation. This memorandum describes recent legislation amending the alternative adequate sites sections of State housing element law:

- AB 720 (Caballero) - Chapter 467, Statutes of 2009: Expands the timeline for a local government to provide committed assistance for the rehabilitation, conversion or preservation of affordable housing units.
- AB 1867 (Harkey) - Chapter 367, Statutes of 2010: Allows multifamily “ownership” housing converted to rental housing affordable to lower income households by acquisition or the purchase of affordability covenants to qualify towards meeting the alternative adequate sites requirement. Also reduces the required number of units in a complex to qualify for this section from four to three units.
- AB 1103 (Huffman) - Chapter 210, Statutes of 2011: Allows, under specific conditions, foreclosed properties converted to housing affordable to lower income households by acquisition or the purchase of affordability covenants to qualify under the alternative adequate sites requirement.

Description of Amendments and Guidance

The housing element is required to provide a land inventory identifying sufficient adequate sites suitable for residential development to accommodate the regional housing need allocation (RHNA). Pursuant to Government Code Section 65583.1(c)(1), local governments can meet up to 25 percent of the site requirement by providing “committed assistance” to make existing units affordable through rehabilitation, conversion, and/or preservation. “Committed assistance” is defined as a legally enforceable agreement which obligates sufficient available funds to provide the assistance necessary to make identified units affordable and available for occupancy within two years of the execution of the agreement.

Timeline to Provide Committed Assistance

Prior to AB 720 (2009, Chapter 467), a local government was limited to entering into a legally enforceable agreement providing committed assistance during the first two years of the housing element planning period. The law was amended to expand the allowable time period by which the local government must enter into a legally enforceable agreement to span the time period from the beginning of the RHNA projection period through the end of the second year of the housing element planning period. Amendments included defining the “projection period” as the time period for which the RHNA is calculated. For example, for local governments within the Sacramento Area Council of Governments (SACOG), the RHNA projection period begins January 1, 2013, with housing element updates due October 31, 2013. Using this example, the period to enter into a legally enforceable agreement for committed assistance would commence on January 1, 2013 and extend until October 31, 2015. A copy of the housing element schedule with the projection and planning periods can be found at the Housing Elements tab at <http://www.hcd.ca.gov/community-development/housing-element/index.shtml>.

Conversion of Existing Housing Stock

Prior to AB 1867 (2010, Chapter 367), only multifamily rental housing complexes with four or more units converted by acquisition or the purchase of affordability covenants were eligible under the conversion provisions of the Adequate Sites Alternative. Chapter 367 amended the statute to provide more flexibility by reducing the minimum housing complex size to three units and allowing ownership multifamily units converted to rental housing to qualify.

To convert existing multifamily ownership units, the housing element must demonstrate that for each ownership unit converted to an affordable unit and counted under the Alternative Adequate Sites, a new multifamily rental unit affordable to lower-income households will be constructed within the planning period of the housing element. For example, for a community to count the conversion of 10 multifamily ownership units to units affordable to lower income households, the element must demonstrate that at least 10 new multifamily rental units will be produced within the planning period of the housing element. The element could describe the number of multifamily units that will be constructed within the planning period of the housing element to be affordable to lower-income households, the date new construction was or is anticipated to be completed, and include a description of the RHNA credit methodology used to determine affordability based on actual rent levels or other mechanisms (i.e., financing). The jurisdiction could also include certificates of occupancy to satisfy this requirement. The number of units affordable to low- and very low-income households which have been constructed must meet or exceed the number of converted ownership units credited against particular RHNA income categories.

AB 1103 (2011, Chapter 210) allows foreclosed properties converted by acquisition or the purchase of affordability covenants to qualify towards meeting a local government's share of the RHNA under the conversion provisions for multifamily units pursuant to Government Code 65583.1(c)(1)(B). The element must demonstrate these units meet the same requirements as converted multifamily rental units. After January 1, 2015, in order for foreclosed properties to qualify, the same multifamily rental production requirements enacted by AB 1867 (2010, Chapter 367), must be followed.

Other Amendments

Government Code Section 65400: AB 720 also amended the requirements of the Housing Element Annual Progress Report \(APR\) to allow reporting of units that have been substantially rehabilitated, converted from non-affordable to affordable by acquisition, and preserved consistent with the standards set by Government Section 65583.1(c). These units can be reported in Table A2 of the APR forms and the report should document how the units meet the alternative adequate sites requirements.

Government Code Section 65583(a)(8): AB 720 further amended the requirement for an analysis of opportunities for energy conservation with respect to residential development in the housing element to encourage the use of weatherization and energy efficiency improvements as part of publicly subsidized housing rehabilitation projects. Sample housing element programs and information to address energy conservation and climate change objectives is available on the Department's website at <http://www.hcd.ca.gov/community-development/building-blocks/site-inventory-analysis/opportunities-for-energy-conservation.shtml> and <http://www.hcd.ca.gov/policy-research/specific-policy-areas/housing-climate-change.shtml>.

If a city or county does not amend its housing element to identify adequate sites to address any shortfall, or fails to complete the rehabilitation, acquisition, purchase of affordability covenants, or the preservation of any housing unit within two years after committed assistance was provided to that unit, it shall be prohibited from identifying units pursuant to subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) of paragraph (2) in the housing element that it adopts for the next planning period, as defined in Section 65588, above the number of units actually provided or preserved due to committed assistance.

 - If the local government has not entered into an enforceable agreement of committed assistance for all units specified in the identified program(s), by the July 1st due date, it must amend its element to identify additional appropriately zoned and suitable sites, sufficient to accommodate the number of units for which committed assistance was not provided. This follow-up action must be taken no later than July 1st of the fourth year of the planning period.
 - If a local government fails to amend its element to identify adequate sites to address any shortfall, or fails to complete the rehabilitation, acquisition, purchase of affordability covenants, or the preservation of any housing unit within two years after committed assistance was provided to that unit, the local government cannot use the alternate adequate sites program provisions of Government Code Section 65583.1(c)(1) in its next housing element update, beyond the number of units actually provided or preserved due to committed assistance.
