March 21, 2022

MEMORANDUM FOR: Planning Directors and Interested Parties

FROM: Megan Kirkeby, Deputy Director
Division of Housing Policy Development

SUBJECT: Default Density Standard Option – 2020 Census Update

Background Information: Pursuant to Government Code section 65583.2, subdivision (c)(3), the housing element must include analysis of identified sites which must demonstrate how adopted densities accommodate the regional housing need for lower-income households. The analysis shall include, but is not limited to, factors such as market demand, financial feasibility, or information based on development project experience within a zone or zones that provide housing for lower-income households.

As an option and alternative to preparing the analysis described above, Government Code section 65583.2, subdivision (c)(3)(B), allows local governments to utilize “default” density standards that are “deemed appropriate to accommodate housing for lower income households.” The default density option is not a mandated density. The default density standard provides a streamlined option for local governments to meet the density requirement. No analysis to establish the appropriateness of the default density is required, and the California Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD) must accept that density as appropriate in its review.

The default density option was adopted in 2003 by consensus with local government representatives, builders, planners, and advocates through the Housing Element Working Group, which was convened by HCD in 2003. Default densities are established using census population figures and based on methodology detailed in Government Code section 65583.2, subdivisions (b)(i)-(iv), and section 65583.2, subdivisions (d)-(f), as summarized below (refer to Table A for detailed information):

- Incorporated cities within non-metropolitan/rural counties and non-metropolitan counties with micropolitan areas (15 units or more per acre)
- Unincorporated areas in all non-metropolitan counties (10 units or more per acre)
- Suburban Jurisdictions (20 units or more per acre)
- Metropolitan Jurisdictions (30 units or more per acre)

Revised Default Density Standards Based on 2020 Census Data Release: Based on the release of 2020 Census data, HCD has updated the default density standards set forth in HCD's June 20, 2012, technical assistance memo (Default Density Standard Option – 2010 Census Update). Specifically, Tables A and B in Appendix 1 of the June 20, 2012, memo have been revised based on current U.S. Census Bureau population-based criteria as established in Government Code section 65583.2, subdivisions (c)(3) and (d)-(f).

The updated optional default density standards are based on either one of the following:

1. Increases in population of a Metropolitan Statistical Area above 2 million between the 2010 and 2020 Census-based estimates; or
2. Increases or decreases of an individual jurisdiction's population between the 2010 and 2020 Census-based estimates.

Population changes to Metropolitan and Micropolitan Statistical Areas are reflected in Table A, below. Applicable jurisdiction level information on default densities for accommodating lower-income households is included as Appendix 1.

Timing and Applicability Regarding Future Housing Element Updates: Due to the timing of the release of the 2020 Census figures in late 2021, as a matter of policy when determining substantial compliance with State Housing Element Law (Gov. Code § 65585, subd. (d)), HCD will consider 2020 Census population figures applicable to all jurisdictions in the sixth planning period due after January 1, 2022. Housing elements due prior to January 1, 2022, may continue to use default densities identified in HCD's June 20, 2012, technical assistance memo. Please note, changes related to default densities in the seventh planning cycle will be effective upon the release of population data for the 2030 Census.

If you have any questions or need assistance, please contact housingelements@hcd.ca.gov.
